McDonough Chapel

Harris Kenner Jr. was born on January 24th, 1942, in Atlanta, Georgia, to his parents Harris Sr. and Emma (Wilson) Kenner and has a younger sister, Jeanette (Kenner) Jacobs . He accepted Christ as his Lord and Savior at a young age.

While he was young, his parents decided to move to New York City. It was here that he would spend his adolescence and majority of his adult life. Harris attended New York School of Printing, a vocational High School, and after graduating he went to the New York City Police Academy. Harris had a wonderful career in law enforcement and impacted many lives in his community through his dedication and service. After fifteen years in law enforcement, Harris retired due to an injury he sustained while protecting and serving. As a result, he was able to spend time with his family and continue to enjoy the world around him. Harris believed in seeing the beauty God put in the world, so he traveled extensively. In addition to traveling, he enjoyed playing basketball, listening to music, and Latin/Salsa dancing. Harris was a member of The Patrolmen Benevolent Association, and the National Organization of Retired Police Officers.

After living in New York, Harris and Joyce decided to relocate in 2007 to McDonough, Georgia in order to be closer to their children and grandchildren. While living in McDonough, Harris became a member of Shiloh Baptist Church, and met many new individuals who he would later call his friends. He leaves to cherish his precious memories, his wife, Joyce A. (Moses) Kenner, mother; Emma Lizzie Kenner, sister; Jeanette (Randy) Jacobs, two children; Marvin (Yasmin) and Chiniqueia, four grand-children; LeAsia, Danielle, Diamond, Isaiah, nephews; Chris and Brian Jacobs, and a host of other relatives and friends. Harris was preceded in death by his father Harris Kenner Sr., and a host of aunts, uncles, and cousins. Harris was a devoted husband, father, and grandfather and a loyal friend to many, but most of all he was an inspiration to all who knew him.
